THE DANCE

A hard-working cowboy was Chesterton Clyde,
and Anabelle Sue was the horse he would ride.
Together they traveled the hills far and wide,
the cowboy and Anabelle Sue.

Now, late on a Friday they rode into town,
and Chesterton watched as the sun settled down.
Then sweaty and dusty and
dirty and brown,
he climbed off of Anabelle Sue.

From off in the distance, a banjo was heard and joined by a fiddle as sweet as a bird.
So Chesterton followed but said not a word
while leading his Anabelle Sue.

They came to a barn where a mandolin played and folks in their finest, they spun and they swayed.
The cowpuncher sighed at the soft serenade along with his Anabelle Sue.

A pretty young lady, so gentle and fair was dressed up with flowers and bows in her hair.
She smiled very sweetly
and blushed at the pair, that cowboy and Anabelle Sue.

The melody soared with the sounds of romance as softly she said, "It's a fine night to dance."
She gave to the cowboy a hesitant glance
while petting old Anabelle Sue.

"I reckon it is,"
answered Chesterton Clyde.
"I ain't danced before, but it's high time I tried."

Then bowing politely, he shuffled inside and danced with his Anabelle Sue.

Love Your Neighbor

Make sure nobody pays back wrong for wrong, but always try to be kind to each other and everyone else.

1 Thessalonians 5:15

Treat people as you want to be treated.
Love your neighbor, no matter what.
God will repay you for your kindness.
